A message from Reverend Sharlyn

Reflections from your pastor ... The Ministry of Prayer

At our April Session meeting, I led us in a time of Scripture reading and discussion. We talked about how important it is to reach out to people and offer the hope and encouragement we have in the risen Lord. We discussed how people are looking for more than just a fun place to be but many are hurting and needing what only we as a family of faith have to offer. When we are talking to each other or to a friend, our conversations can become serious at times. When we trust each other, it is not unusual to share a problem or emotions with one another. Those are the times when we should offer what we have found gives us hope and encouragement and joy. We offer Jesus' love and forgiveness. We offer his new life that is found in the resurrection.

Out of that conversation came a discussion about who we are as elders - leaders in the church. We are more than Session members; more than team leaders of specific teams that do certain jobs that need to be done. Elders are spiritual leaders in the church. They are "set aside" - consecrated - in their ordination for a work that is to minister to others. Elders are called to pray for others.

James 5:13-16 says: Are any among you suffering? They should pray. Are any cheerful? They should sing songs of praise. Are any among you sick? They should call for the elders of the church and have them pray over them, anointing them with oil in the name of the Lord. The prayer of faith will save the sick, and the Lord will raise them up; and anyone who has committed sins will be forgiven. Therefore confess your sins to one another, and pray for one another, so that you may be healed. The prayer of the righteous is powerful and effective.

Prayer is such an important part of ministry. We agreed at Session meeting - the meeting of the current, active elders - that we would provide a quiet place for prayer after worship each Sunday. If you are wanting someone to pray for you or for a loved one - if you are hurting or sick or in need of forgiveness - come to the corner in the back of the sanctuary where there will be a prayer space and an elder or two there, waiting to pray with you. Anything you say to them will be confidential.

They will listen and offer prayer and you will feel encouraged by the Holy Spirit who will be present among you.

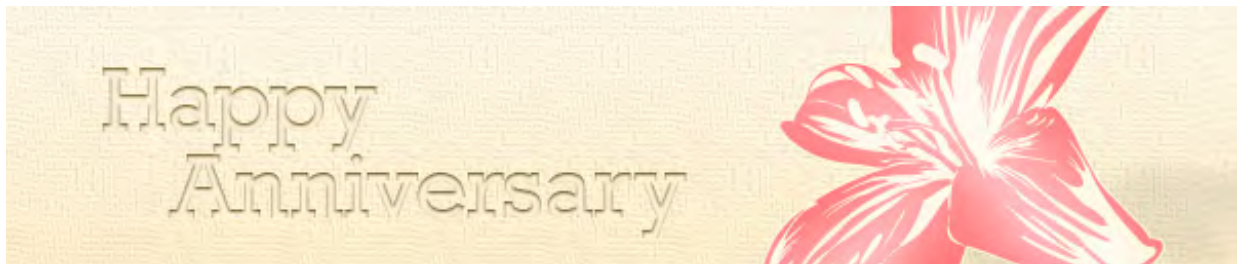

Please take advantage of this prayer ministry. If you wish to be one who offers prayer at times, let us know. It isn't just elders who are called to pray. But if you just want prayer, please come and receive a blessing.

Pray for this prayer ministry to be a blessing to many in our congregation and perhaps extend out to others in the community.

My the risen Lord be present to us in our prayers in a mighty, yet sweet way. Amen.

Reverend Sharlyn

A Word from Pastor Shaun

While visiting a church last year I noticed the congregation had put a puzzle in their narthex. At first I thought it had to do with some type of sermon series or a piece of scriptures but, after asking around I found out the pastor was asking each person of the church to place a piece of the puzzle together to show they could accomplish anything when they work as a church family.

So you may be wondering what does this have to do with Holly Presbyterian church. Well thanks for asking.

Just like that church came together to put a puzzle together we need everyone to come together to accomplish some things around the church in the month of May like working in the Baby Pantry, setting up and working the Rummage Sale, and maybe even a church clean up date. If we all come together to help and even bring someone else it will make light work having many hands. Thanks in advance for your help!

So if you would like to help check out the back of the bulletin and listen during announcement when these events will be happening.

Shaun

Observations about Stewardship from the Bible to enhance our understanding and spiritual growth:

In Genesis we read the account of God creating man and woman. It is interesting to note that God's next action was to appoint them as God's stewards over every living thing that moves on the earth. God put the first human being into the Garden to till the ground and to give names to all the beasts.

God saw fit to emphasize from the very beginning the necessity of good stewardship. It is important to our Christian journey that we understand how God asks all of us to remember to be ever diligent in our responsibility to His creation and His Covenant with us through Jesus Christ.

Good stewardship is a fundamental need in our Christian walk and for the glory of God.

A Note from Rev. Sharlyn

Please check out my blog site at <http://www.sharlyndgates.com> and follow as I do something I've always loved doing - WRITING. I will be trying to write regularly about life events and how they can help us to experience God in our lives. Please read my experience with feeding goats and fighting one mean rooster while at my daughter's house. It's titled Fighting Our Demons. I'd love to hear your feedback.

New Prayer Ministry

Each Sunday following worship, there will be elders in the back of the sanctuary ready to pray with anyone who comes. A quiet, sacred space for prayer will be set aside for that purpose. Please come and know that whatever you share with an elder will be held in complete confidence. If you feel called to be one who prays with and for others, please let one of the pastors or elders know. Let's pray for one another!

Friends

With

Needs

April was a great month for Friends with Needs. Ms. Donna DeNise came in for a visit with Ms. Laura and showed us how to make tie dye blankets. Each of us got to keep our own blanket after it was done.

We all learned how to tie and it was fun. Now we have a blanket to keep us warm as well that we made.

May is hopeful as well. A representative from US Congressman Mike Bishop is coming on Tuesday, May 30th at 2:00pm to speak on what is happening on mental health issues.

Friends with Needs meets three times a week. On each Tuesdays we have some special planned for them to do. Sometimes it's Bingo, which is done by our very own Jennifer Chanter once a month, Bible Study, Game day. This group could use your help. If you feel lead to help organize them with a monthly calendar of events, help with something your good at, maybe a craft or speak to them about your hobby. Pray about it, then go see Reisa or Rev. Sharlyn and tell them you're ready to help.

From the Lions' Den

The great ends of the Church are... the promotion of social righteousness.

The story is told of a country pastor who preached zealously one morning on the topic of sin. Seated in the front pew, right beneath him, was one of church's leading elders. "This church is going to the Devil with all its gossiping!" the preacher proclaimed. The elder nodded in agreement and said quietly, "Great preaching, Reverend."

"This church is going to the Devil with all its pettiness and greed!" the preacher continued. At this the elder looked over his shoulder, and then spoke in agreement, "That's right, preacher. That's good teaching." Then the preacher added, "And this church is going to the Devil with all its drinking!" With this, the elder rose to his feet and said in a loud voice. "Well! Now you've gone and taken to meddlin'!"

In this column, I am returning to the six "great ends" or purposes of the Church. The great ends of the church are among "the foundations of Presbyterian polity" in our Book of Order - cornerstone affirmations of what it means to be Presbyterian. So far, we have considered "the proclamation of the gospel for the salvation of humankind," "the shelter, nurture, and spiritual fellowship of the children of God," "the maintenance of divine worship," and "the preservation of the truth." These are all important - but largely non-controversial - purposes. With the fifth great end - "the promotion of social righteousness" - many believe the church "has taken to meddlin'."

We live in a politically polarized society. Recent studies show that people are more likely to marry a person of a different faith than a person of a different political party. We resent people who challenge our political convictions. What is more, there is a strong tradition of pietism in American religion - the belief that sin consists only of personal vices and behaviors, and that religion is a private matter not appropriate for the public arena.

That is directly at odds with both biblical faith and the Reformed tradition. The core event of the Old Testament - the exodus from Egypt - is the story of Moses' protest and God's intervention against the most powerful government on earth. The prophets, from Elijah to Malachi, proclaimed God's judgment on unjust rulers and systems. And the New Testament - from Mary's Magnificat to God's final victory in Revelation - affirms that God is Lord of all, including the political powers of the earth.

Reformed Christianity - the family of faith that includes Presbyterians, Congregationalists, and others - believes that the church is called not to withdraw from the world, but to transform the world to a more faithful reflection of God's will. In our own society, this put Presbyterians among the leaders of the American Revolution. James Madison and Alexander Hamilton - the principal framers of our Constitution - both were strongly influenced by Reformed and Presbyterian theories of government.

But that also has led to disagreements and even divisions over what constitutes "social righteousness." The deepest and longest lasting division in American Presbyterianism was over the issue of whether chattel slavery was consistent with God's will. More recently, the civil rights movements, the war in Vietnam, women's rights, gay rights, climate change, and Middle East policy have all generated intense debate, and sometimes division, within the church as we seek to determine and pursue God's call to promote social righteousness.

But the same principle that informs our desire for social righteousness - that God alone is God - also shapes our conviction that "God alone is Lord of the conscience." So, when, often after intense debate, the church bears prophetic social witness, it only speaks to the church, not for the church. That is, we continue to respect that people of good faith may differ on these matters, and our fellowship as Presbyterians and Christians does not depend on uniformity of opinion. In fact, we recognize that we may even at times be mistaken in our witness, and we need the ongoing voices of faithful dissenters to bring us to repentance and correction.

Can we conduct our debates with greater respect, prayerfulness, wisdom, and love? Certainly. But the alternative - not "meddlin'" at all - is not acceptable for those of us who believe in a God of justice who reigns over the kings of the earth. To say "Jesus is Lord" is to say he is Lord of politics, too. And imperfect as we might be in honoring his Lordship, our faith compels us to do so in all areas of life.

Faithfully,

Dan Saperstein, Executive Presbyter
